

Many students work long hours between classes, jobs, and extracurriculars, leaving little time for meal planning or cooking. Existing campus food options are often expensive or nutritionally poor, forcing students to choose convenience over health. A service or system that highlights affordable, healthy choices and delivery/meal-prep alternatives would improve student wellbeing and academic performance.